"I am honored to work with Children's Health Fund, an organization that is committed to giving a voice to children and advocating for their healthcare needs," said Masucci. "I am looking forward to applying my experience to improve the health of our nation's most disadvantaged children."

Children's Health Fund supports 26 programs across the country and works in partnership with its network of individuals and institutions committed to bringing care to children who need it most. "We are excited to add another passionate leader to our board whose expertise will strengthen our mission."

"It will be a pleasure working with, and learning from, Michele," says Hervé Sedky, Chairman of the Board of Children's Health Fund. About Children's Health Fund

Children's Health Fund (CHF) envisions a future where all children in the United States get the care and support they need to thrive. Because healthcare is a critical component of that vision and inequities in access exist, CHF's mission is to ensure access to high-quality healthcare for America's most disadvantaged children. CHF also works to reduce health barriers to learning, brings the voice of children to local and national policy debates, and in times of disaster, activates care for those in need.

Since 1987, CHF has been delivering high-quality, comprehensive healthcare to children in some of the most impoverished and underserved communities in the country. From South Los Angeles to the Mississippi Delta, from the South Bronx to southern Arizona, every year our 26 national programs and fleet of 50 mobile medical clinics provide care to more than 100,000 children and their families living in poverty. We deliver this care at more than 400 service sites, including fixed-site clinics, schools, Head Start centers, homeless and domestic violence shelters, and community agencies.
